ABOUT GARETH WILEY

Gareth has been working as a film producer & executive producer for over a decade.

Since 2004, he has produced independent feature films with budgets totalling over $100 million including four with Woody Allen. Having persuaded the New Yorker to move his 2004 movie to London the collaboration grew until in January 2009 he won a Best Picture Golden Globe for Woody's "Vicky Cristina Barcelona". This was Gareth's second Golden Globe nomination in four years, having been previously nominated in 2006 for his first collaboration with Woody Allen, "Match Point". In 2013, Gareth launched a new online film finance tool, www.screenadvantage.com. This online application makes all Gareth's proprietary film financing modelling tools available to the industry as a whole and has been widely praised. Users now include Oscar® & Golden Globe® winning producers and film students alike. Affordable and sophisticated, but easy to use, ScreenAdvantage® allows producers to present professional finance plans and allows financiers to understand at a glance the structure being proposed.

Prior to moving into film full time, Gareth enjoyed fifteen years working in international banking and finance with some of the world's leading banking institutions, including, Salomon Brothers & UBS Warburg.

Gareth studied Business with Economics & Law, before starting his working life as a banker in February 1985. A fascination with the creative process resulted in an involvement in film finance and production as early as 1993. Prior to working with Woody Allen, he maintained a career in investment banking (working in London, Hong Kong and the United States) in parallel with an increasing involvement in film production and finance. In 2002 committed himself to working exclusively in film and other creative businesses (including setting up a Grammy nominated classic record label).
