Armenian weekly lance son podcast

The Armenian Weekly is pleased to introduce the first installment of its Audio Long Read series... another informative layer in The Armenian Weekly Podcast. The series will feature narrated versions of important, long-form commentaries, which have been originally published in the newspaper. The article featured in this episode was written by former Weekly editor and ARF-Eastern Region Committee member, Antranig Kasparian, who comments on how “community leadership” in the modern Armenian Diaspora has changed and what these changes in representation might signify on a deeper level.
