

Le Haut Conseil de Turquie s'inquiète que le génocide arménien (105 ans plus tard) "divise" les Turcs (Mais les dirigeants actuels ne sont pas éternels...)

ANKARA — The Armenian Genocide was discussed at a meeting of Turkey's High Advisory Board presided over by President Recep Tayyip Erdogan on Tuesday, January 14, Anadolu Agency reports.

The country's communications director Fahrettin Altun (gold in Turkish) said "some circles" are seeking to use the issue "to create divisions within the Turkish community" and "damage the harmony of the Turkish people."

In a statement following the meeting, Altun said the officials evaluated national and international opinions on the issue along with the correct diplomatic moves and attempts to hinder acts of disinformation on the case.

"The members of the High Advisory Board once again emphasized their determination to maintain our solidarity and union and the protection of our country..."

source : agence Anadolu (Anatolie)

