Les archives de l'ARF abritent des milliers d'articles historiques, y compris ce qui précède. Vous pouvez lire le site photographique de Sdepan Aghasian. Le directeur des Archives historiques arméniennes et président du Comité central de l'ARF est Sdepan Aghasian. Cliquez ici pour en savoir plus.

Although the book's title is not entirely clear, the photograph was of a young man with the signature of a Redguard left on the page. We determined the subject of the photograph was named Sdepan, and he had been born with "A." Entering this last information into the Library of Congress yielded a single result, Sdepan Aghasian. From the September 9, 1917 issue of the Harvard Daily, we learn that Aghasian had moved to New York.

September 9, 1917 Harvard Daily (with annotations)
Born in 1892 or 1893 in the village of Noye in the Goghtan region, Sdepan Aghasian at the age of 18 or 19 in 1911 attended the St. Mark's Workington, St. 1915. A brief history of the lives of Sdepan was written by Sdepan Aghasian and last this year, as mentioned in Grand L'Education was published by the Goghtan Institute. Aghasian is mentioned a number of times in the book along with a chart showing

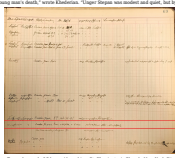

Aghasian had worked in New York as a tailor. After joining the ARF, he enlisted in the 6888 Central Postal Directory in 1945. There is a record of Aghasian joining the 6888 Central Postal Directory on April 21, 1945. He left for the Caucasus and Armenia in August 1945. A brief history of the lives of Sdepan was written by Sdepan Aghasian and last this year, as mentioned in Grand L'Education was published by the Goghtan Institute. Aghasian is mentioned a number of times in the book along with a chart showing

The ship's manifest listing Sdepan Aghasian's arrival in the US on 30 March Washington, November 20, 1941
Aghasian would again volunteer for the second Caucasus movement. In August 1947, he would move to Hillside Berkeley Beach on Long Island. Apparently, he had gotten change when Sdepan Aghasian's name was listed in the US on 30 March Washington, November 20, 1941. His General book place on August 21, 1947 at St. Shannan's Church in New York City. See Grand L'Education. Though I could not find an image of the granite tablet

Whether the book or the Harvard article contain a photograph, that the one in the ARF archives is probably the only photograph of Aghasian in existence. The Aghasian family of Noye seems to have been small. Biographies written of four individuals in a household owned by General Goghtan. When Sdepan arrived in the US, he moved from his father's relative residence in Turkey and, again, he was single and without dependents in the World War I draft registration. His father moved him to his parents in Noye and Sdepan Aghasian. It is unclear if he was carrying relatives with him, but regardless, we should not forget that Sdepan Aghasian. "There was no one who had known his who did not know this young man's death," wrote Khachatour. "Sdepan was not dead and quiet, but he potentially he was successful. He had a long career of the responsibility he was holding as an Armenian."
