

NOUVEL HAY MAGAZINE

SANS FRONTIÈRES

USC 25 mars 2022

USC Dornsife

Institute of Armenian Studies

Inscrivez-vous ici pour une présentation virtuelle du Dr Diana Ter-Ghazaryan sur la mémoire collective, le patrimoine et plus encore.

Talking with Place: Spatial Narratives, Collective Memory and Cultural Heritage in the City

Dr. Diana Ter-Ghazaryan,
Faculty Research Associate,
Florida International
University's GIS Center

 Friday, March 25, 2022,
2 pm – 3 pm PT

 Spatial Sciences Institute Conference
Room (AHF B57J) and Zoom

Register here

Dr. Diana Ter-Ghazaryan discusses her acclaimed work on Yerevan, Armenia, as well as presents her newest work on public art, monuments and memory in South Florida.

Dr. Ter-Ghazaryan is a GIS specialist, educator, researcher and thought leader in geospatial data visualization and analysis. In her current position as faculty research associate at Florida International University's GIS Center, she engages with the university community to incorporate geospatial technology in all levels of teaching, research and operations. Her scholarly work has focused on urban landscapes, and how national identity and social memory are inscribed onto those landscapes. Her current projects are at the intersection of geospatial technology and geo-humanities, with a focus on cultural heritage, monuments and public art in urban contexts. She holds a PhD in International Relations and Geography with a Graduate Certificate in GIS and Remote Sensing, as well as a Master's in Environmental Studies.

Créé en 2005, l'Institut d'études arméniennes de l'USC soutient des bourses multidisciplinaires pour redéfinir, explorer et étudier les questions complexes qui composent l'expérience arménienne contemporaine - de l'après-génocide à la République d'Arménie en développement en passant par l'évolution de la diaspora. L'Institut encourage la recherche, les publications et le service public, et promeut les liens entre les communautés universitaires et arméniennes mondiales.

Copyright © 2022 USC Institute of Armenian Studies, Tous droits réservés.

Notre adresse postale est :

arménien@usc.edu