"I am in a battered taxi, on the road from Yerevan to Echmiadzin.

We are passing through the garish, obnoxious, preposterous Casino Row.

To make conversation, I ask the cabbie whether he had been to Dzidzernagapert earlier in the day.

He takes a deep breath and mutters: "I am waiting to pay respects to the second Dzidzernagapert."

I ask him what he means.

"We are going through a second genocide...The country is emptying every day..."
