

NOUVEL HAY MAGAZINE

SANS FRONTIÈRES

AANSI

Only a few days ago, we successfully concluded the inaugural AANSI (American Armenian National Security Institute) Humanitarian Support Brigade training in Aragats, Armenia. The training took place from August 5 through 12 in a challenging training area 24 miles northeast of Yerevan.

Nearly fifty men and women from eight countries, United States, Canada, France, Ukraine, Georgia, Spain, Russia and Armenia, gathered under the banner of AANSI to participate in this Humanitarian Support Brigade mission training in Aragats, Armenia.

The objective of the mission was and continues to be, the building within the Armenian Diaspora of a commitment to personally deploy to Armenia and Artsakh in times of national emergencies, whether natural disasters, such as earthquakes, floods, massive fires, or man-made disasters such as the renewed armed conflict with Armenia's enemies, "within 96 hours of notification by the Armenian authorities when a disaster is declared."

The full training program was coordinated by AANSI Founding President, U.S. Army Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Mark MacCarley which included:

- Training in response to man-made or natural disasters.
- Training in response to military aggression against civilians in Armenia by providing care and assistance to the wounded and displaced.
- First aid training — CPR and AED.
- Training in Cyber/Information Security.
- Training in communication/network operations in the event of a national emergency.

AANSI invites you to be a part of this groundbreaking initiative and become an integral part of safeguarding greater Armenia's sovereignty and emerging democratic institutions.

For further information, please contact AANSI via email or by phone. Watch the link: <https://abc7.com/american-armenian-national-security-institute-armenia--first-aid-training/13631054/>

	Glendale group provides training in Armenia for responding to emergencies, disasters Glendale-based American Armenian National Security Institute provides training in Armenia on skills needed in a disaster, such as CPR and first aid. abc7.com
---	--

Note. SAVE THE DATE: the AANSI 3RD Annual Banquet will be Thursday, November 9, 2023, at the Taglyan Banquet Center in Los Angeles. (Details to follow.)

source :

ANI MARTIKYAN

Executive Assistant, Administration

American Armenian National Security Institute (AANSI)

C/O MacCarley & Rosen, PLC

330 N. Brand Blvd., Ste. 1250

Glendale, California 91203